

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA
Richmond Division

ANDRE A. WASHINGTON,

Plaintiff,

v.

Civil Action No. 3:18CV871

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA, et al.,

Defendants.

MEMORANDUM OPINION

Andre A. Washington, proceeding pro se, attempts to remove his state criminal prosecution to this Court. For the reasons that follow, the request will be denied and the matter will be remanded to state court.

I. PROCEDURAL HISTORY

As best the Court can discern from his rambling and nonsensical submissions, it appears that at some point in 2018, Washington was charged in the Circuit Court for the City of Petersburg with discharging a firearm, malicious wounding, and possession of a controlled substance. (See ECF No. 1-7, at 13.) On December 17, 2018, Washington filed a "LEGAL NOTICE OF REMOVAL" wherein he attempts to remove the above criminal proceedings to this Court. (ECF No. 1, at 1.)

II. REMOVAL OF CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS

Removal of a criminal action is proper if a defendant meets the substantive requirements of 28 U.S.C. § 1443. That statute provides:

Any of the following civil actions or criminal prosecutions, commenced in a State court may be removed by the defendant to the district court of the United States for the district and division embracing the place wherein it is pending:

- (1) Against any person who is denied or cannot enforce in the courts of such State a right under any law providing for the equal civil rights of citizens of the United States, or of all persons within the jurisdiction thereof;
- (2) For any act under color of authority derived from any law providing for equal rights, or for refusing to do any act on the ground that it would be inconsistent with such law.

28 U.S.C. § 1443. The Supreme Court has stated that removal under 28 U.S.C. § 1443(2) "is available only to state officers." Greenwood, Miss. v. Peacock, 384 U.S. 808, 824 n.22 (1966). Thus, Washington must demonstrate that removal is appropriate under 28 U.S.C. § 1443(1).

A "[p]rerequisite to a removal of a pending criminal prosecution under 28 U.S.C.A. § 1443(1) is a showing that the defendant is being denied rights guaranteed under a federal law 'providing for specific civil rights stated in terms of racial equality.'" South Carolina v. Moore, 447 F.2d 1067, 1070 (4th Cir. 1971) (quoting Georgia v. Rachel, 384 U.S. 780, 792 (1966)) (internal footnote omitted). Nevertheless, "'broad contentions of deprivation of equal protection and due process under the Fourteenth Amendment do not support removal of claims under § 1443(1).'" Dugas v. Hanover Cnty. Circuit Court, 3:08CV72, 2008 WL 4153765, at *3 (E.D. Va. Sept. 5, 2008) (quoting New Mexico v. Gutierrez, 409 F. Supp. 2d 1346, 1349 (D.N.M. 2006)).

It is not enough to support removal under § 1443(1) to allege or show that the defendant's federal equal civil rights have been illegally and corruptly denied by state administrative officials in advance of trial, that the charges against the defendant are false, or that the defendant is unable to obtain a fair trial in a particular state court. The motives of the officers bringing the charges may be corrupt, but that does not show that the state trial court will find the defendant guilty if he is innocent, or that in any other manner the defendant will be 'denied or cannot enforce in the courts' of the State any right under a federal law providing for equal civil rights. . . . Under § 1443(1), the vindication of the defendant's federal rights is left to the state courts except in the rare situations where it can be clearly predicted by reason of the operation of a pervasive and explicit state or federal law that those rights will inevitably be denied by the very act of bringing the defendant to trial in the state court.

Id. (emphasis added) (citing cases); see South Carolina v. Grace, 234 F. App'x 103, 104 (4th Cir. 2007).

Washington does not identify any law of general application from which it can be clearly predicted that he would not be able to enforce specified federal rights during his state prosecution.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> For example, in Georgia v. Rachel, 384 U.S. 780 (1966), twenty African-American individuals were prosecuted in state court for criminal trespass violations as a result of their attempts to obtain service at a privately owned restaurant in Atlanta, Georgia. In contrast, federal law required such a restaurant to serve

Greenwood, 384 U.S. at 828. Rather, Washington's arguments are based on the general notion that due to his status as a "Moorish American," the Commonwealth and the Circuit Court lack jurisdiction to prosecute him criminally. These frivolous arguments warrant no further discussion and are clearly not sufficient to make "'an equally firm prediction that [he] would be 'denied or cannot enforce' . . . specified federal rights in the state court.'" Johnson v. Mississippi, 421 U.S. 213, 219 (1975) (quoting Rachel, 384 U.S. at 804). Moreover, because Washington "has failed to allege that his federal rights cannot be redressed at the appellate level in the [Virginia] judicial system. Section 1443(1) has thus not been satisfied." Delavigne v. Delavigne, 530 F.2d 598, 600 (4th Cir. 1976).

III. CONCLUSION

Washington has failed to demonstrate that the requisite jurisdiction exists to allow him to remove his criminal cases to this Court. Accordingly, the matter will be remanded to the Circuit Court. See Northrup v. North Carolina, 461 F. App'x 211, 212 (4th Cir. 2012) (concluding "the proper disposition upon a determination of the lack of subject matter jurisdiction is to remand the case to the state court, rather than dismiss the action" persons of all races, thus immunizing the conduct for which they were being prosecuted.

(citing 28 U.S.C. §§ 1446(c)(3), (4), 1447(c); Hunt v. Lamb, 427 F.3d 725, 727 (10th Cir. 2005))). The Court notes that Washington's frivolous submissions have no effect on any state criminal prosecution.

The Clerk is directed to send a copy of this Memorandum Opinion to Washington and to the Circuit Court for the City of Petersburg.
